Leitrim has many wonderful old monuments; ruins, castles, and dolmens, dotted throughout the county, reflecting our our history and culture. Many of our more recent buildings are not likely to last as long. As an artist, I find that they give no inspiration or sense of history. The Public Arts Programme has helped change that. These sketches show some of the work created under this scheme. At last the county has many fine`Monuments` to reflect the community and it's history. Because they are created from the earth's natural materials, metal and stone, they will be there to tell their story for many, many years to come, to future generations.
